[Yale Items did not include African-Americans from Yale, except for the following notations.]

The store was lighted with electricity for the first time last Thursday evening.

Last Wednesday night, the colored Populist lecturer, A. A. Johns, delivered a discourse in the Yale rink. A large and enthusiastic audience was present and vociferous cheers greeted him at every passage. It is reported that the sounds, which emanated from the building could be heard for ten blocks.

1900

February 12, 1900, p. 2 – Two newspaper stories regarding Yale (these were not listed under Yale Items, but are of relevance).

Small Pox at Yale – The small pox at Yale is becoming more serious every day. Yesterday forenoon there were eleven patients in the pest house and five more were taken there last evening. No expense is spared by the coal company and authorities to check what now seems to be taking on the form of an epidemic. The pest house is located over a mile north of the town and is carefully guarded and the houses of the suspects are also closely watched and two doctors are kept constantly going in order to keep the disease as near under control as possible. The disease is supposed to have been carried into the camp by a darkey who escaped from a pest house in the Indian Territory and came direct to Yale about three weeks ago and was taken down in about a week after his arrival. With one or two exceptions the cases are all of a mild form.

Shooting at Yale – The weekly shoot and round up among the colored population at Yale, resulted in the fatal wounding of one man and the stabbing of another. The former's name was Ben Simpson and he was shot through the abdomen with a 41 revolver in the hands of an unknown darkey, a stranger in the camp and will die. He had had trouble about an hour before the shooting in a joint and they separated, and when they met again in the street Simpson had a Winchester and the unknown a revolver 41 calibre. Simpson would have used his gun, but the man with the 41 got there first. The other victim was stabbed with an ugly knife in the fight with a woman known only as "Laura B.," but he is not seriously injured.

March 14, 1900, p. [2] – A newspaper story regarding Yale (was not listed under Yale Items, but is of relevance).

Smallpox Situation at Yale – County Commissioner Braden with Dr. Moberg, made a trip to Litchfield and Yale today to look after the condition of the smallpox in that vicinity. It seems there has been some trouble among the colored victims of the disease. Those who have been in the pest house and recovered from the disease refuse to leave and others refused to go to the pest house. Mr. Braden ordered that a house be prepared for the former and they be placed therein under lock and key. This order had the effect of changing their minds, and those who have refused to go to the pest house will be forced to go. He reports the condition of things very satisfactory, everything considered. County Commissioner Watson, in whose district Yale is located, came down from Girard this morning to look after the work of investigation, but seems to go by the saying "distance lends enchantment to the view," and was satisfied with Commissioner Braden's report.
