CHASING A BOOBY!

Martha Price

Wednesday, August 15, 6:00 a.m. - still dark. Charlie & Carolyn Chips picked up Martha Price and left Girard for Pittsburg. Liz Mangle was waiting on her back porch at 6:16 p.m. We were on our way. It had been reported there was a rare sighting of a Brown Booby in Arkansas. WHAT??! This is a sea bird rarely coming ashore. What is it doing in the middle of the United States? Nobody has the answer but a lot of speculation is floating around. It has been confirmed to be a female Brown Booby. We had to go see it. No second opportunity on this bird!

Our group met Dave and Martha Evans of Van OK, friends of the Chips, at Ft. Smith AR and the journey continued. We arrived at Lake Norrel, Alexander AR, west of Little Rock. Jamie Peach on her pontoon boat picked up the group at 12:30 p.m. Our search was coming to a conclusion. The day was bright and temperature ideal for a calm boat ride a short way up the lake to the boat dock of Scott Selmela and there she, "Ralph", was sitting under the dock roof. A beautiful 30" tall brown gray bird with white face, yellow bill, legs and feet and the deepest of blue eyes.

The group docked and positioned to take pictures. Two other couples and the news crew from Channel 7 Little Rock were on the scene also. Unexpectedly we became news story cast members as we boated around to get a look at Ralph. At the start of the day we had no idea we would end up on TV. Ralph was the star of the day, walking around rafters, preening and watching us watching her. Then she flew off on those 60" wings over the lake, dove in and came up with an afternoon snack. What a bird! It was well worth the trip. Also flying around the dock was a Rufous Hummingbird who was a life list-er for some of the group. We said good-bye to our dock hosts and pontoon driver and headed home; it was 2:00 p.m. After supper near Ft. Smith we said good-bye to the Evans' and headed on home. End of the journey back in Girard at 9:30 p.m. - it's dark again. This was not our Big Day of birding but our Big Day of traveling to see ONE bird: 650 miles and 16 hours but it was all worth it - a great Big Day!

Along our journey we also saw the following birds: Red-tailed Hawk, Mourning Dove, Eastern Meadowlark, Common Starling, Common Grackle, Turkey Vulture, Black Vulture, Pigeon, Common Crow, Cattle Egret, Canada Geese, Turkey, Red-shouldered hawk, Barn Swallow, Scissor-tailed Flycatcher, Great Egret, Blue Heron, Sharp-shinned hawk, Peregrine Falcon, ?? Ducks, Carolina chickadee, Tufted Titmouse, Blue-gray Gnatcatcher, House Sparrow, Eurasian Collared Dove, House Finch, Eastern Kingbird, Chimney Swift, plus the Rufous Hummingbird and Brown Booby. A total of 30; not bad when going for one.

Board Meeting Highlights

Barb Robins, Secretary

Attending: Mavis Benner, Delia Lister, Bob & Liz Mangie, Diane McCallum, Martha Price, Barb Robins, Emmett & Ruth Sullivan.

Call To Order (Interim Pres. Benner): 6:05 p.m.

Minutes from August Meeting: Approved.

Treasurer's Report (Liz): Checking account balance of $3,306.34.

Old Business:

Photo Contest: Meagan Duffy had reported that there was no indication of interest from her photography class. Since there appeared to be little interest elsewhere, it was moved, seconded and approved that we do not hold a photo contest this year.

Bird Seed Sale (Dec. 8): The mail is scheduled and the seed source verified. Signup sheets for volunteers will be circulated at next month's general meeting.

Field Trips: Mavis passed around a tentative schedule.

Program for April: We discussed and agreed that a bird ID-related one would be enjoyable and informative.

Community Project: There is still interest in a chimney swift tower; possible sites were suggested.

New Business:

It was moved, seconded, and approved to give tonight's speaker, Jeff Cantrell, an SGAS t-shirt. Meeting adjourned at 6:45.

September Audubon Presentation

Jeff Cantrell

It is difficult to be herpetophobic (afraid of reptiles) after experiencing a presentation by Jeff Cantrell, Education Consultant for the Missouri Department of Conservation. His program for us was entitled, "Their Blood Runs Cold." Jeff involved the audience by walking around and allowing everyone to touch a model of a hellbender, a tiger salamander, three-toed box turtle, a tortoise from Africa, speckled king snake, black rat snake, and Great Plains rat snake (the latter specimen has been held or touched by 21,000 people).

Jeff gave us some reasons why amphibians have been rapidly disappearing worldwide, including a deformity-causing fungus carried by the African clawed frog imported by pet stores and science labs. Also, poaching for the pet trade and hitting them with vehicles have greatly decimated them. He also emphasized the importance of keeping amphibians and reptiles in their original habitat, as well as not acquiring imported pets.

Although a few hardcore herpetophobes probably were remaining at the end of Jeff's program, we all left with a greater understanding and appreciation of our native "herps".

General Meeting Happenings — September 2012

Members were welcomed by Interim President Mavis Benner.

The signup sheet was circulated for refreshment volunteers for the year. Diane McCallum explained that all local chapter dues are now due in September.

There is a minor glitch in the e-mail newsletter mailing list; if you didn't receive one this month, contact Cindy Ford.

A field trip this Saturday will be at the Neosho Wildlife Area; meet at the St. Paul café at 7 a.m.

Mavis invited everyone to attend the SGAS board meetings, immediately before the general meetings, 6 p.m. in Heckert-Wells Hall.

Bob Mangie awarded 50-bird pins to Megan Corrigan and Wayne Bockelman. Mavis proposed that we visit the Sperry-Galliger property on South College St. to learn more of its history and see the house interior. Vic Sullivan elaborated on the "pair-o'-docs'" life, work, and philosophy. Mavis will arrange a tour, possibly in November.

Vic Sullivan introduced his guest, David Weible.

Martha Price introduced Ruth Hughes as a visitor and possible future attendee.

Martha held a door prize drawing and awarded prizes to Cheryl Lemmon, Kiona Brown, Ruth Sullivan, Ruth Hughes, and Donna Brown.

First Bird Walk of the Fall
Diane McCallum

It's been a long summer and it was time to enjoy the many gifts that autumn offers, so six SGAS members met at Neosho Wildlife Area for a bird walk on Saturday, Sept. 29. Those present were Bob and Liz Mangile, Mavis Benner, Marvin and Donna Smith, and Diane McCallum. The weather was perfect, with a few clouds but no rain, a bit of a breeze and cool temperatures for most of the morning. At the start of the trip, we were treated to a sun bow, a ring that went around the sun like a faint rainbow.

Everywhere there was lush green, sprinkled with white, yellow and purple wildflowers. Although there weren't a lot of birds to be seen, we did see 30 species, including an amazing number of red-headed woodpeckers. Other highlights were pileated woodpeckers, an osprey flying directly overhead, a summer tanager singing in the branches of a tree, and several flocks of white pelicans soaring gracefully in the sky. We also saw non-bird species: a southern leopard frog, several butterflies, and two monarch caterpillars. Diane had a close encounter with a bee but survived it.

Bob tried his best to spot an ibis but wasn't able to do it. All of us had a good time and enjoyed the morning together.

Upcoming Field Trips

If you have some areas where you would like to visit on field trips, please let Mavis Benner, Bob or Liz Mangile know your ideas.

We may be visiting the Sperry-Galligar house in the near future.

Nature Resources

Google the following resources. You will be pleasantly surprised by the kind of information available.

Acorn Naturalist has some fantastic outdoor equipment, books, and media for exploring your surroundings.

The Great Plains Nature Center in Wichita continues to publish some tiny fieldguides on birds, plants, reptiles, mussels, and more.

The Kansas Native Plant Society keeps up a great website with good information on native plants and wildflower events around the state.
