Dear Eva;

I sent you the shortest note in history immediately on receiving your request of July 29.

If you think I can contribute a meaningful foreword to your book, I'll do the best I can. Whenever you are ready to operate I'll be glad to hear from you about the material involved.

We hope you are not suffering too much from the summer heat. As far as I'm concerned, the only place I'm completely comfortable is on the tennis court. It was 94 when I was out there yesterday.
Somehow you get hotter in street clothes and doing nothing.

Affectionate greetings as always,

Robert Russell Bennett
