APPLE DAY

It was on March 8, 1907, that the KSCP faculty was first fined a barrel of apples to treat the student body. The College was then the State Manual Training Normal School.

In February of that year, Senate Bill No. 71 had proposed an appropriation of $150,000 to build the first building of the present campus, Russ Hall. On hand to aid local legislators in getting a new campus started, was SMTN Principal Russell Station Russ, who saw the bill passed by the Senate on Feb. 11, by the House on March 2, and approved by the Governor on March 5. Upon publishing of the bill on March 7, the House passed a resolution fining anyone occupying the chair of a legislator a barrel of apples, knowing full well that Principal Russ would habitually slip into a seat any time one was unoccupied. He was accordingly caught and fined.

Upon his return to Pittsburg, Russ called several students into his office, suggesting they fine the faculty a barrel of apples to commemorate the founding of the new campus. This they did, and the custom has been observed annually for almost 70 years now, becoming over the years not only Apple Day, but Commemoration Day as well, honoring the founding of the College in 1903.
