THOUGHT FOR TODAY
For nation shall rise against nation and kingdom against kingdom: and pestilences, and earthquakes, in divers places.—St. Matthew, 24:7.
When any calamity has been suffered the first thing to be remembered, is, how much has been escaped.—Johnson.

A BOUQUET
There have been many criticisms on the attitude of Pittsburg high school students at basketball games. It is true that the attitude of most students could be improved but Pittsburg students have for the most part shown that they are courteous and that they are good sports.
As proof of this there is the cause of booping which occurred; but after it was requested that this stop, it ceased practically altogether.
This is to be complimented.

There is one consolation in the passing of the basketball season: It will not be necessary to watch those two lame brain senior boys make further asses of themselves by clowning on the sidelines.

LIBRARY TRIES—DO YOU?
The library of the high school tries its best to supply the needs of the students with material for study and books to read for pleasure.
It is regrettable that some students cannot avail themselves of these privileges without taking advantage of them by returning the books in a worse condition than they were when checked out.
These students do such unnecessary things as drawing pictures on the flyleaf, tearing pages, and removing book marks which have been placed in the card holder of every fiction and many non-fiction books. The failure to get books in when they are due also seems to be a much-practiced fault.
If the students do not try to remedy these faults it will be necessary to deny the use of the library to those found doing any of these things.—L. P.

If the Dragons trounce Parsons and take second place they need not feel bad. Many a good team has finished lower than second place.

A WAY TO LEARN
A "painless" way to an education is the desire of some students.
There is one way by which students can acquire knowledge with a least amount of effort. This is through reading.
A student should acquire a habit of reading. First, by reading the things he is interested in and then by reading more and more the serious books.
Reading newspaper keeps a student "up to the minute" concerning everyday problems and helps him in his social studies. Good literature is invaluable to a student.
Each student of the high school should realize that good reading is one way to success. E. S.

WE AMERICANS
The day of the English language must be over!
If an ancestor of the years gone by should come back to our modern age what would be his impression of our languages?
Take a telephone conversation, for instance. One side usually sounds like this: Yeah, huh? ya don't say! sure, O. K., be seein' ya.
Our language is also composed of slang sayings that, unless the dear ancestor knew the origin and meaning of the phrase, he might wonder our nationality. Take for instance the practice of "thumping" some one the forehead and saying "your not normal!"

Well, enough of this. Just stop to think a minute when you are talking and look around and see if in some dark corner some shadowy being isn't laughing at you.—D. J. W.

When the newspapers begin to print stories about track prospects can spring be far behind? And in the spring—of course—the lads' thoughts turn to fancies of javelins and hurdles.

Some students do not seem to like the ways the Girl Reserve groups are trying to raise money. If they can think of any better ways, the sponsors would be very glad to hear them.

Pity the fellow who lost all his friends and had nothing but relatives left.

There is one thing exceedingly provoking about the faculty of this school. Its basketball team is still 1,000 percent in the junior-senior division.

Let us have faith that right makes might, and in that faith let us to the end dare to do our duty as we understand it.—A. Lincoln.

What Others Say

EDUCATION'S RESPONSIBILITY
The American public high school has been described as "A community agency not matched elsewhere in human history." This year we are celebrating the 300th anniversary of this institution, our foremost contribution to democratic education.

The event will be celebrated throughout the country by activities of various kinds in the secondary schools. These will find expression through classes, clubs, assemblies, homerooms, commencement, and organizations interested in education.
The time is at hand for schools to make known the real reasons for their existence. The fact that America has a more democratic system of schooling than any other country in the world should be emphasized. But the needs and shortcomings of the system must not be overlooked. Public support is essential for the solution of its problems.

"The whole people must take upon themselves education of the whole people and be willing to bear the expense of it," in the words of John Adams. Today's problem is to convince "the whole people" of this fact. Conviction is growing that we must depend upon the secondary school to develop a democracy which will meet the need of an ever changing society. Secondary schools are potential agencies for building a higher level of civilization.
Let every high school in America join in making this year, not only a milestone in the history of education, but a year which will mark the beginning of an era of greater service and accomplishment.
—Vitalized Schools Journalism.

CH?MP
Ch?mp. "That question mark determines your future," according to a letter in the Scholastic Magazine to the students of American high schools. Will the missing vowel be an "a" or a "u"? What will the word be "champ" or "chump"? Each one of us can decide that for himself right now. That difference isn't in the letter, but rather in the word itself. That word is training.
Each day brings us nearer to the time when we shall be earning our own living and fighting for a career against competition that is as keen as remorseless, and as subtle as any we shall ever know." We must train for this ordeal, for we can't with our arm in a sling, nor can we accomplish anything if we don't try. If we want to be a "champ" we shall have to work.
We know by experience that it is the "champ" that succeeds instead of the "chump," is willing to train himself and learn, while the "chump" is still drifting aimlessly.
—Exchange.

The Booster Says "Good Bye"

"It's been a tough but pleasant nine years," says The Booster to Mr. Leroy Brewington, who left last Friday to take charge of the printing department at the College.
"We dislike to see you go," continues the paper, but of course we are happy that you received an advancement.
"The Collegio is a good paper and we hope you treat it as well as you treated us. We know that you will get along all right in the new job because printer's ink runs deep in your family. Best wishes for success."—The Booster.

Foods and Clothing in Home Economics Course Are Valued in All Walks of Life

"If I were asked the mission of the ideal woman, I would say it is to make the whole world homelike." These were the words of Frances E. Willard, one of the most interesting women in American history.

Whether you plan to be a business woman or a housewife, a course in home economics is equally valuable. You may not cook food, but you will select it; you may not make your clothes, but you will buy them.

Both the foods and clothing classes which are included in the high school course of study deal with these subjects.

Foods and homemaking is taught by Miss Calla Leeka. Three years work is offered in the foods course. An additional class in homemaking is included this year. This is for the boys of the high school who are interested in such work. Miss Leeka, instructor, has planned a special course of study for this class. Whether this plan will be continued next year depends on its success this year.

Study Foods for Breakfast
The selection and serving of suitable foods for breakfast is studied as well as the various ways of preparing them in foods II. The study of the luncheon is also begun. The need of vitamins and food values is emphasized through the entire course.

Expense Account Kept
The study of textiles in also included in the clothing course of the high school. Both light and heavy weight wool, silk, and cotton materials are worked with by all students.
An expense account for the entire nine months of the school year is kept by each girl. A complete wardrobe for a school girl, who has only a certain amount of money for her clothes, is another project which is worked out by the students. These projects gives experiences in economy and in choosing ones own wardrobe for the year.

THE DRAGON WHISPERS

Current Crushes: Virginia McQuitty has a crush on "Duck Noor"; Jane Henderson has fallen for Jack Lambert; Billy Maurine Wells, Mary Virginia Hubert, and Oliva Albertini are casting longing glances toward Billy Parks, but Billy seems to be up in the air over Betty Cain; Virginia Evans heart flutters when Paul Rhoades appears, and 'tis rumored that Bob Cuthbertson is "that way" about Margaret Douglas.

Just say the magic word "potentate" to Lewis Kidder and observe the result.

Grade school days are here again—or something. Anyway that's what we were reminded of when we saw Marshall Shorter, Bob Church, Roll Davis and "Chuck" Shorter indulging in the gentle art of throwing paper wads. There is such a difference between being clever and being childish.

Jack Overman and Bud Peterson go to Girard every Sunday. The answer is Charlene and Mary Shipman.

Leo Howard is very kind-hearted—says who! He relates how he refused to take Lorene Gaines home from school one afternoon. When she was

PUPIL PORTRAITS

Senior Boy
Leland Schlapper is the senior boy in the spotlight today. Leland came from Lakeside junior high school. He is about six feet two inches tall, and when he dons his drum major's outfit, he looks like the Cardiff giant. He plays the bass violin, sometimes called the 'groan box,' in the orchestra. He is in Miss Dorothy McPherson's home room. Leland has light brown eyes and sandy hair. He is talented, as was shown when he played the part of the groomsman in the play "The Wedding." Leland has a pleasing personality and would be well worth while to meet.

Senior Girl
Five feet, four inches of petite charm is the description of Mary Deane Skidmore, a member of Miss Dorothy McPherson's home room. She has light brown hair and light green eyes. She is a member of the girls' glee club, singing soprano, and has a magnetic personality. If she is not already your friend, you should make her acquaintance.

CRACKS... from the Classes

Principal J. L. Hutchinson—Does any one sit here?
Miss Frances Palmer—(meaning Robert Fleischaker)—She is absent.

Miss Anna Fintle—John, can you tell me why A'O equals AO?
John Miller—Well, all I know is that it is something about something.

Mr. Charles O. Jordan—As long as it was wet it won't be dry.

Vincent Jackson—You raise less sausage.

Robert Nevin—Aunita, is that my pencil?

Aunita Hinkley—No, Bob, it belongs to another girl.

Dorothy Brous—What are we going to do?
Mabel Farrell—A continuation of what we didn't do last time.

Mr. Charles O. Jordan—You can cook beans all day in Denver and they won't cook.

Leslie Jones—The yond shooting star.

Mr. William Row—You mean the yond distant star.

Mr. Clyde Hartford—Some people don't see their faults.

Elizabeth Watson—I don't have any.

Shirley Jean Smith—Oh, John, you sure got some high powered cough drops.

Dorothy Jane Wilson—Gordon spanked me.

Helen McGinnis—Johiity Miller is a sailor maid man.

Miss Harriett Way—If Miss Laney gets back before I get back, tell her I'll be back.

Jane Baxter—I think they ought to put the teachers' birthdays in here and tell how old they are.

Bob Church—I'll fight him, won't we, boys?

Guy Edwards—Sure, we will won't you, Bob?

Alden Carder—This in the way Jack walks with his pants in his pockets.

Betty Jo Coulter—Every time I look at you I laugh.

Betty Dorsey—(during history picture)—Why, I thought the Sunflower came over, too.

Julius Wilbert—Lewis, who was that new Ford V8 I saw you with last night?

« BOOKS » We Like

"Seventeen" by Booth Tarkington
One of the most amusing stories Booth Tarkington has ever written is "Seventeen," a story of a young boy of seventeen who thinks he is "it."

William Sylvanus Baxter, who hates to be called "Willie" (especially around girls), is afflicted with the same thing hundreds of other boys are, a little sister. The story tells of the thousands of things that happen daily in every home.

He has all the adventures that young men have some time in their life. Borrowing father's dress suit (without father's knowing), falling in love with a 24 years old, etc. This book is well worth the time anyone spends in reading it.

Dame Fashion Says

"Dame Fashion" today demands that the well-educated high school students have good manners. The following true and false questions were taken from "The Kansas Teacher" prepared by Principal H. H. Robinson, Augusta high school, Augusta, Kas. Can you answer them?

- Manners At Meals
1. One sits up straight at the table.
 2. When using the knife and fork one keeps his elbows close to his side.
 3. One rests the left elbow on the table while eating.
 4. A boy seats the girl or girls next to him then waits for all the ladies at the table to be seated before he sits down himself.
 5. If there is a head waiter in a restaurant, the boy goes before the girl to a table and draws out a chair for her to sit down.
 6. If a waiter leads the way, he follows the waiter ahead of the girl.
 7. One treats the waiter in an impersonal but courteous manner.
 8. One begins eating when the hostess or the head of the table begins to eat.
 9. One follows the lead of the hostess or head of the table which knife, fork, or spoon to use.
 10. If one is asked to pass the bread, he helps himself first.
 11. One helps himself from the serving dish with his own knife, fork, or spoon.
 12. It is proper to cut up all of one's meat at once.
 13. One should butter a whole slice of bread at once.
 14. One breaks crackers into his soup.
 15. In passing his plate for a second helping, one place his knife and fork side by side on the plate.

Poet's Corner

WHEN THE WINTER IS OVER

And when the winter is over,
The trees will get new leaves.
The bees will come back to the clover,
And the swallow back to the lanes.

The birds will wear on their bosoms
Vests that are bright and new,
And the lovely wayside blossoms
Will bloom with the sun and dew.

Now, there must be cold weather
And winds and rains so rough
For not all good things together
Come to us here on earth.
—Jane Henderson, sophomore.

OVER 90 TEXTS SOLD BY COUNCIL BOOK EXCHANGE

The Student Council book exchange closed Friday night after school. The book exchange is sponsored every year by the council and the work is done by the council officers.

According to Lewis Kidder, president, the exchange sold over 90 books. The council added five cents to the purchase price of the book for handling it. This money goes into the treasury of the council.

The money will be given to the students Monday night after school at the office. All the books that were not sold will also be given to the students at the office.

Girl Reserves

The Girl Reserves held a joint meeting in the auditorium, Wednesday, at the activity period. Miss Dorothy McPherson's group was in charge.

Sue Major, sophomore, played a piano solo. Catherine McNeill, junior, sang a vocal solo, and Billie Ann Hutlock, sophomore, gave a reading.

Jack McQuitty, senior, sang a solo. A violin solo was played by Harriet Ellen Carter, junior; and Margaret Myers, junior, sang "Danny Boy" and "Blue Moon."

Dewey is President

Fillmore Dewey has been elected the new president of Mr. Charles O. Jordan's home room. Marshall Shorter is vice president, and Bill Morgan is secretary-treasurer. Mayfield Rose is Student Council representative with LeRoy Albertini, the alternate. All the boys are seniors.

Gallinetti's Death Trap Reaps Fall of Lunch Thieves

Pop, Pop, Snap, Ouch. "Woe unto those mice." Don't be alarmed if you should hear Guido Gallinetti, senior class vice president, shout or screech this. It isn't bats in his belfry, but mice in his locker.

Gallinetti like the rest of us has his worries. His fingers are sore from setting mouse traps, his pockets are forever full of cheese which he carries to bait his trap; and always his lunch looks like some sculptor or miner has begun work on it.

The popping and snapping are his futile efforts to set the death trap. Gallinetti brings cheese for "those pesky things." They proceed to eat it from the trap and then climb up his coat to his lunch, which they seem to take great delight in changing in appearance.

"Sometimes I can't tell the difference between my lunch and a slice of Swiss cheese. It is so holy," Gallinetti said gloomily.

Ah! the death blow is dealt. "The pesky thing" is dead after several days of stolen bait. It was caught in a trap without a bait.

Dan Ponto, Gallinetti's locker partner, was thought to like cheese and Gallinetti believes he would have achieved his revenge sooner, had Dan Ponto been absent.

MR. ROW'S CLASSES BEGIN USUAL WORK AFTER PLAYS

The speech classes have finished working on the plays which were given last week and will begin working on straight speech work for the rest of the semester, according to Mr. William H. Row, debate and speech coach.

The dramatics classes under the direction of Mr. Row are studying exercises on the movements of the hands and feet and the correct posture on the stage.

The international relations classes have completed the study of the League of Nations. Mr. Row said he expects to have the set of flags, which was started last semester, finished this semester.

Typing Classes Study Letters
The typewriting II classes are beginning the study of the business letter, according to the instructor, Miss Ferda Hatton. They are learning to place the letters accurately.

STUDENT COUNCIL

Do what you can Where you are With what you have. —Theodore Roosevelt.

Law and Order Committee
Students, let's be more careful about the stairs after school and running in the halls. What do our visitors think about us when they see us marking on the walls and throwing paper in the halls? The chairs in the library should be left where they are placed and not at the end of the tables.

Public and Private Property
If you have lost anything see Miss Anna D. Costello, room 205. She has several articles of clothing.

Sanitation Committee
The Sanitation committee reminds you:

The poster the committee put up this week concerns milk. Milk is strong in vitamins A, B, and G. These vitamins help prevent such diseases as infections of the nose, eyes, and throat. They prevent defective teeth, a disease of the nerves called beriberi, and a disease called pellagra which affects the skin and other parts of the body.

Dragons Tounce Joplin 31 to 13

Pittsburg Invades Missouri to Defeat Red and Green For Second Time

After beating their Missouri rivals in a basketball game several weeks ago on the Lakeside court the Dragons invaded Joplin Friday night to quash the Red and Green in a 31-to-13 return tilt.

Leading his teammates in this victory, Bill Morgan, flashy forward, scored six field goals, Schmuck, forward, and Noor, center, added to the total of the domestics with four field goals apiece.

This scoring combination backed by the teamwork of Bitner and Beck, guards, showed rare ability in offensive work.

The Joplin center, Main, lead the attack off the Missourians with four field goals.

With fast passing that carried a zip, the Purple and White quintet kept itself in the lead at the end of all divisions of the game. The score was 6 to 2 at the end of the quarter, 12 to 6 at the end of the half, and 21 to 8 at the end of the third period.

In a preliminary game the Dragon second team suffered a 25 to 10 defeat at the hands of the Joplin second stringers.

The box score:

Dragons to Meet Parsons Tonight

Locals to Clash With Viking Team For Second Place In S. E. K. League

The Parsons Vikings will arrive in Pittsburg at 7:30 o'clock tonight to engage the Dragon cagers in a battle for second place in the S. E. K. circuit. The game will be played on the Lakeside court.

Last year the Vikings struck the Dragons a death blow as far as their hopes for the S. E. K. title were concerned, and although the Dragons gained some revenge by defeating Parsons in the regional meet at Coffeyville, they will be aiming to reap full revenge tonight.

The Dragons' hopes for a tie for first place were blasted when the Chanute Comets stopped the Parsons Vikings last Friday night on the Chanute court.

It will be a heated contest for second place. The Dragons have Parsons and Columbus, both strong teams, to defeat. If this is accomplished, it will clinch second place for the Dragons.

Coach Bailey Ricketts has a good team of rangy boys, who will require that the Hoffman cagers be on their toes.

The Chanute Comets seemingly have first place sewed up, so it looks as if the Dragons will place second in the S. E. K. league in both football and basketball.

DRAGON CAGERS

Any one needs encouragement, but a team thrives on it. Get behind the Dragons and give them some of that pep and school spirit.

BITNER

LAMBERT

Merchants who are behind the team and are giving it enthusiasm deserve a good deed in return. Show your loyalty and boost their business to success.

DRAGON COACH

The Dragon cagers, first eight, are as follows: Bill Morgan, Jimmy Schmuck, Dennis Noor, Henry Bitner, Jack Lambert, Orville Beck, Al Simonic and Stew Davis.

COACH
Frank Hoffman

These are messages which show that the merchants are backing the Dragons. So, back them to show your appreciation.
