TISSUE

Can a lover bury his face
in one lone breast?

Louise Page

In cooperation with Women's Studies in celebration of Women's History Month

An Experimental Theatre Production

DIRECTOR'S NOTES -

TISSUE was first presented at the Studio Theatre of the Belgrade, Coventry, England on 3 May 1978.

Louise Page comments that if she were to write a play on mastectomy now it would come out very differently.

We have Americanized her play and updated a few technical things - but it is obvious that this play is essentially universal and although it deals with relationships, the central message is clear.

SISTERS -

Check, get an examination -
"...what does it matter that a breast is not there, because I am alive."
