Biographical Note	Gerald Burton Winrod was born March 7, 1900 in Wichita, Kansas to John Wesley and Mabel Craig Winrod. Approximately 1918 John Wesley Winrod became a preacher, and in 1925 Gerald B. Winrod's parents started the Healing Temple in Wichita, Kansas. Gerald B. Winrod stopped attending school in the fifth grade but was tutored in theology by revivalist Newton N. Riddell. Gerald Winrod is believed to have preached his first sermon when he was twelve years old, and by the time he was in his twenties was a full-time evangelist. In November 1925 Winrod was named the executive director of The Defenders of the Christians Faith, an organization he helped organize, and in April 1926 he began to publish a religious magazine titled The Defender. That same year, Winrod became the World's Christian Fundamentals Association secretary. Between 1932-1934, Winrod's beliefs transitioned into conspiratorial anti-Semitism views. When World War II began Winrod supported Adolf Hitler

and Nazi Germany, with support growing throughout the war. Because of this, he had the nickname of “the Jayhawk Hitler.”

In 1938 Winrod ran unsuccessfully for the U. S. Senate as a Kansas Republican. He would blame Jewish influence for his defeat. During the next two years, following the Nazi- Soviet Pact of 1939, Winrod worked to prevent the United States from entering into World War II, which resulted in the media presenting him as a key figure in the international fascist movement. Subscriptions for his The Defender publication declined.

During this time the FBI was watching Winrod, with regular surveillance starting in 1939. His personal relationships suffered. On May 27, 1940, his wife, Frances Winrod, sought legal protection, as she believed her husband to be dangerously unstable. In March 1941, under the advisement of FBI director J. Edgar Hoover, Winrod was put on a list of people to detain in the event of a national emergency. In July of 1942 Winrod was indicted along with twenty-nine others under the Smith Act for conspiring to cause insubordination in the armed forces. The trial began in Washington D.C. in April 1944. The case against Winrod and the others was considered weak at best and despite the FBI’s best efforts, the trial ended in November 1944 when the judge of the case died of a sudden heart attack, and the prosecution was dropped by the government. During the years after the case and after World War II Winrod and his wife reconciled and subscriptions for The Defender rose to almost what they were before he ran for the senate. During the 1950’s Winrod’s health declined. He caught influenza during the 1957 epidemic. His refusal of orthodox medical practices led to his death on November 11, 1957.
