

Religious Emphasis...

Religious Emphasis Week was perhaps the most enthusiastic that the campus has ever seen. The week in which the program was held ran from February 20 to 25.

Special convocations, worship services, devotional services, class room discussions, fraternity and sorority discussions and seminars were open to all students on the campus.

The outstanding lecturers carried their messages to the students in interesting and enlightening ways, and lively discussion resulted in almost every meeting, whether in classroom discussion, seminars, or wherever the groups gathered.

In the seminars, students took part and led the discussions, assisted by the speakers.

Speakers for the week were: Rev. Edward J. Duncan, chaplain to Catholic students and director of the Newman foundation at the University of Illinois, Rev. Frank J. Pippin of the Community Christian church, Kansas City, Mo., and Rev. Rolland N. Dutton of the Delmar Baptist church, St. Louis, Mo.

The Kanza...

The Kanza is the official yearbook publication of Kansas State Teachers College at Pittsburg. Its editor-in-chief, assistant editor and business manager are appointed by the board of publications. The other staff members are selected by the editor-in-chief.

It's purpose is to present college life and feature the many events that occur during the nine months which constitute a normal school year.

This year was the second time that the issue came out in two sections . . . an idea born last year by William A. Scott and John P. Hudson.

The Kanza sponsored the biggest social event of the year . . . the formal Kanza ball. The yearbook brought to Pittsburg Jimmy Palmer and his orchestra for the event which saw Miss Louise Burcham crowned official queen of the current edition. Fred Waring made the selection from photographs sent him of the seventeen girls competing.

EARL MOREY
Business Manager

ROBERT GREENWOOD, Assistant Editor
JOHN HUDSON, Editor-in-Chief

The Collegio, official weekly student publication of the College, is published each Wednesday on the campus. It brings to the students and faculty news of interest, features and pictures of school activities.

Nancy Howe is editor of the publication and Morten Gunderson is the business manager. Clay DeFord, publicity director, is sponsor of the publication. John Hudson was employed by the paper during the last semester to instruct in journalism and assist in the supervision of publication.

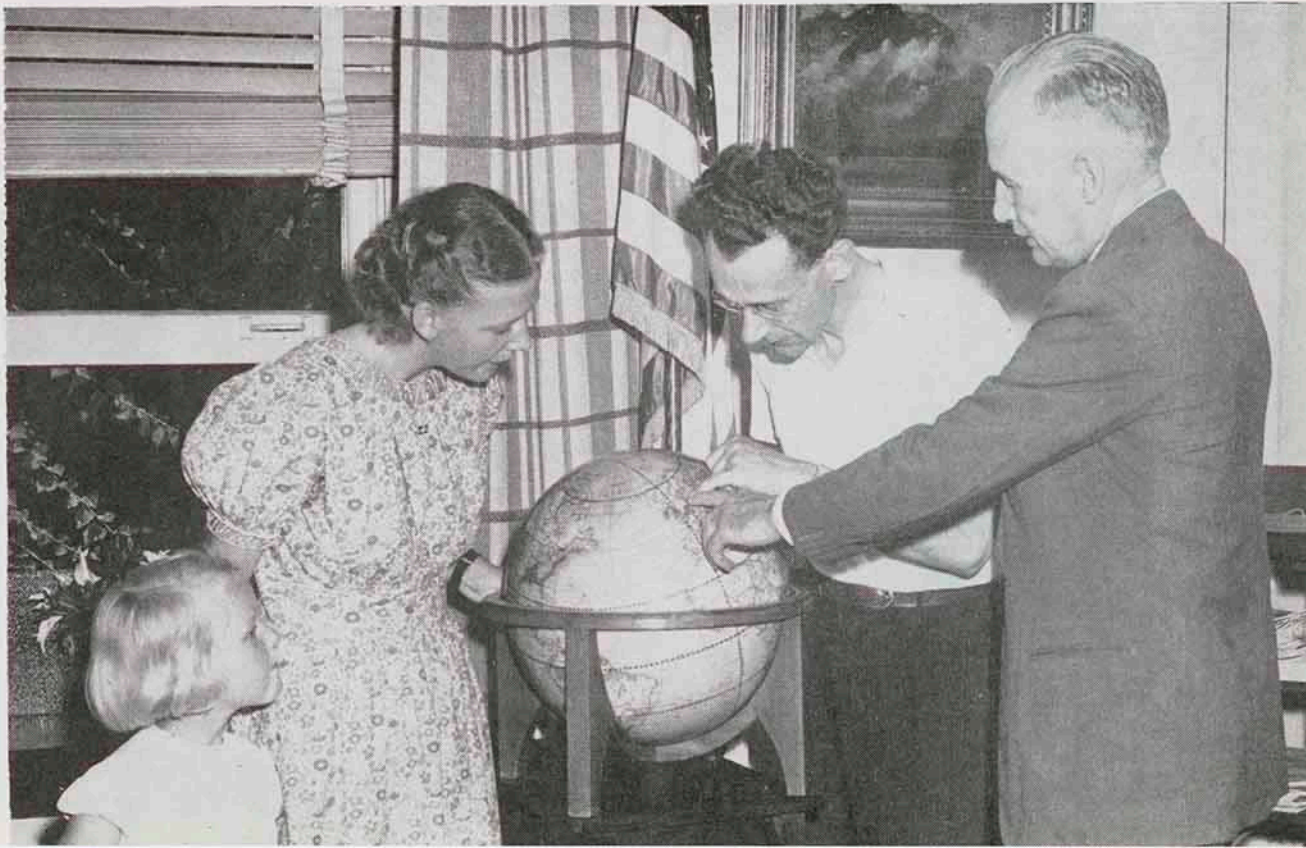

Our Danish Guest...

That serious-minded gentleman on the campus for the first time this year is Ulf Oestergaard, exchange instructor to the United States from Denmark and assigned to the language and literature department. Mr. Oestergaard and his family live in the Units and will return to Denmark in August.

To those on the campus this year it was not an unusual sight to see the instructor or his wife riding about on a bicycle.

President Rees H. Hughes met Mr. Oestergaard when he attended a UNESCO conference in Paris and asked the Danish teacher if he had ever been in the United States. When he answered no, the President asked him if he would like to come to the United States to teach. Mr. Oestergaard was very enthusiastic with the idea and President Hughes started the negotiations with governmental and educational authorities.

Yes sir, Mr. Oestergaard, there are many, many people going to miss you and your family when you return to Europe and leave us.

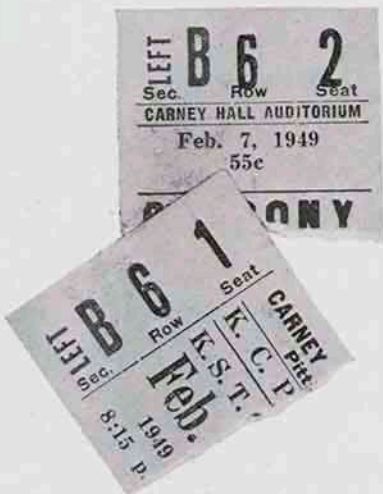

College & Top

It was Burl Burl Ives who packed the College Auditorium on the night of April 7 entertaining the many people with his noted ballad singing.

And what's more the people liked the gentleman with the beard. Hundreds of parents attended the concert as guests of the College.

Entertainment...

The Kansas City Philharmonic orchestra, directed by Hans Schweiger, played before a crowd of 2,000 students and townspeople from the tri-state area on Feb. 8. The program included such masters as Bizet, Debussy, Sibelius and Beethoven in a manner which was enthusiastically received by all those who attended.

The orchestra had previously appeared in a performance in the afternoon which attracted some 1,500 pupils from Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri schools.

Student Council...

The Student Council is an all-student organization on the campus of the College constantly on guard for the welfare of the students. Through its various committees and president it conducts investigations which directly affect the lives of all those who attend Kansas State Teachers College.

The Council manages many of the school functions which attract a large number of the student body. All offices on the council are elected by the student body of the College.
